“ My dear sis, I find it so hard to believe you are gone. Everything seems so strange and unreal. My whole world came crashing when I got that call that you left this world. I could not believe you are gone. I still try to tell myself this is just a dream. Your death has been a shock for our family. Now I look down at your name and it only serves to remind me of the painful loss we endure. I can still hear your laughter and warmth the last 2 weeks we talked we each other. During our conversation you reminded me how we were the 5 girls after mami Afah's own heart, and your wish were for us 5 girls to be united on a summer vacation table chilling together. You left without your wish being fulfilled. You have left a hollow in us. You took a piece of our hearts with you and only be restored the day we see you again. Love you for ever and always. RIP NUKA

“ Gurl you have broken me into pieces. Am in Limbo, speechless, dumb founded. Who will wake me up early in the mornings to check on me mom and the boys?. Who will I talk to early in the wee hours of the mornings? on my way to work and at work?. When I found out that you were in Maryland I was so excited overwhelmed with joy and happiness. The first time I met you in person was like 5months ago. We bonded right away. You told me about your struggles, but I was there to listen and I told you the past stay domant .Lets make the best of the life we have ahead. You told me so much about our families that no one had ever spoken to me about. You and I will talk for hours on the phone and laugh over the issues of the past about our families. Gurl you donc shatter me into pieces. I wake up in the mornings waiting to hear my phone ring, that Lydia is calling to check on us . Where are you Lydia? All our struggles to go back to school went in vain?.... Why? Why? Ahhh no calls from Lydia. Why have you done this to me gurl! Is this the Maryland you said you will come back and see us after you had settled down in Dallas? What will I tell Lyonna and Lauryn where u are?... Ahhhh Ahhhh. God God . !!!!!!!
Rest in peace sis. Greet my father my aunties, my brothers, and sister.
Our God has taken you to a better place. Sleep well my sister.
Lots of Love.

“ Ly, it broke out hearts to loose you, since you left you took a part of us with you. I know you are resting in his beautiful garden. The lord needed you to make his garden more beautiful. Shine on angel, spread your wings and fly until we meet to part no more.

“ Lydia, I cannot imagine what I just heard about you. You came here , I took you in as one of my daughters. For reasons unknown to me, you left for Maryland and cut off communication. Now I'm hit in the face with this unimaginable news of your passing. I'm left wondering if there is anything I could have done and whether that would have made a difference. I can only guess. Whatever the case, you ran the race and went home too too soon. Sleep well dear one, and may the Almighty shower you with the peace that eluded you here on earth. Good night. Denis N.
